

F24-W4111-03: Introduction to Databases: Homework 2, Part B

Submission Instructions

Note to TAs: The TAs will post submission instructions on Ed, CourseWorks and GradeScope.

Environment Setup

Check Packages and Connections

This section tests your environment for HW1B.

If you successfully completed HW0, you should not have any problems.

Please make sure you set your MySQL user id and password correctly.

In [1]: # %pip install pandas import pandas
```

```
In [2]: import sqlalchemy
```

```
In [4]: import pymysql
```

```
In [5]: import json
```

```
In [6]: %load_ext sql
```

```
In [9]: %sql mysql+pymysql://root:gjc20021013@localhost
```

In [10]: engine = sqlalchemy.create_engine("mysql+pymysql://root:gjc20021013@localhost")
```

Sample Database

For this homework, we need a more complex database and sample data to adequately write and test complex SQL.

We will use the Classic Models example database for this homework and subsequent homework assignments. The SQL script for creating the database/schema and loading the data is in the same GitHub directory as this notebook. If you downloaded a zip file to start HW2B, the file is in the directory containing the notebook.

In [11]: `%ls -l *.sql`

-rw-rw-r--@ 1 orangegoo  staff  195764 Oct 20 14:31 mysqlsampledatabase.sql

You install and create the database and install the code in the same way you set up and installed the sample database associated with the recommended textbook. You performed this task earlier in the semester. The steps for installing the database using the command line is also on the website for Classic Models.

The following cell will check if you have correctly installed the database.

In [12]: `%%sql`

use classicmodels;

with one as ( select
        *
    from orders join orderdetails using(orderNumber)
),
two as ( select
        *
    from customers join one using(customerNumber)
),
three as ( select
        *
    from two join products using(productCode)
)
select customerNumber,
    customerName,
    orderNumber, status,
    quantityOrdered,
    priceEach,
    orderLineNumber,
    productName,
    productVendor
```

```

    customerNumber = 114

Entity Relationship Modeling

Create Entity Relationship Model

The ability to take a high-level description of a required database and produce an ER-diagram is one of the most fundamental skills needed for using databases. Consider the following scenario for creating a data model for the Harry Potter series of books.

The data model has the following entity types:

1. Character has the properties:
 - last_name
 - first_name
 - description
2. Book has the properties:
 - title
 - volume_number is the ordinal number of the book in the overall series. For example, Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire has volume_number 4.
 - publication_year
3. Chapter has the properties:
 - volume_number
 - chapter_number
 - chapter_title
 - chapter_summary
4. Event has the following properties:
 - event_type is a value from a list of possible event types. The data model should support adding new allowed values for event_type without requiring changing the data model/schema.
 - event_description

This is where things get tricky. People think of an Event having a form like:

1. Event: Harry Receives His Hogwarts Letter

- Type: Milestone
- Description: After multiple failed attempts to deliver a letter to Harry, Hagrid personally delivers his acceptance letter to Hogwarts.
- Participants: Harry Potter, Hagrid, Dursley Family
- Book: Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone
- Chapter: Chapter 4: "The Keeper of the Keys"

2. Event: Sorting Hat Ceremony

- Type: Ceremony
- Description: Harry and his classmates are sorted into their respective houses. Harry is placed in Gryffindor despite the Sorting Hat considering Slytherin.
- Participants: Harry Potter, Ron Weasley, Hermione Granger, Draco Malfoy, Sorting Hat
- Book: Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone
- Chapter: Chapter 7: "The Sorting Hat"

3. Event: Battle of the Department of Mysteries

- Type: Battle
- Description: Harry and his friends fight Death Eaters at the Ministry of Magic. Sirius Black is killed by Bellatrix Lestrange.
- Participants: Harry Potter, Hermione Granger, Ron Weasley, Neville Longbottom, Luna Lovegood, Ginny Weasley, Death Eaters, Order of the Phoenix
- Book: Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix
- Chapter: Chapter 35: "Beyond the Veil"

4. Event: Dumbledore's Death

- Type: Tragedy
- Description: Severus Snape kills Albus Dumbledore at the top of the Astronomy Tower, as part of a prearranged plan.
- Participants: Albus Dumbledore, Severus Snape, Draco Malfoy, Death Eaters
- Book: Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince
- Chapter: Chapter 27: "The Lightning-Struck Tower"

5. Event: Harry's Final Duel with Voldemort

- Type: Battle
- Description: Harry confronts Voldemort in the Great Hall and finally defeats him, bringing an end to the Dark Lord's reign.
- Participants: Harry Potter, Lord Voldemort

- Book: Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows
- Chapter: Chapter 36: "The Flaw in the Plan"

You must define and diagram an ER model using Crow's Foot notation that enables representing the information in a relational/SQL database. This should include defining:

- Primary keys
- Foreign keys
- Relationships necessary to represent and store the data.

To accomplish the task, you may need to create additional entity types, attributes, etc.

In the cell below, please document any assumptions/design decisions you make and include the ER diagram.

Answer:

- Assumptions/design decisions:
 1. Character-Event Relationship:
 - Many characters can participate in many events, and each event can have multiple characters. To handle this many-to-many relationship, a join table CharacterEvent is introduced.
 2. Event Type:
 - To maintain flexibility in the event_type attribute, an Event_Type entity is created to store different types of events (e.g., "Milestone," "Battle," "Ceremony"). This allows new event types to be added without modifying the core schema.
 3. Book-Chapter Relationship:
 - A book contains multiple chapters, and each chapter belongs to only one book. This one-to-many relationship is established by storing a foreign key (BookID) in the Chapter table.
 4. Event-Chapter Relationship:
 - Events occur within a specific chapter. Therefore, an event must reference the chapter it takes place in via a foreign key (ChapterID).
 5. Composite Key:
 - For chapters, the composite key of volume_number and chapter_number ensures each chapter in a book is unique.
 6. Character Names:
 - Characters are identified by their CharacterID, and their first_name and last_name are stored as attributes.

ER Diagram

Implement ER Diagram

The diagram below is a simple ER Model using specialization to model companies with which a corporation may do business. You must create a database with the name `w4111_hw2_<uni>`, replacing `<uni>` with your UNI.

Your implementation must use the 3 Table Solution to modeling specialization.

You need to create the necessary primary keys, foreign keys, views, etc. A query on the table/view `Company` must include a column indicating whether the `Company` is a `Supplier` or a `Customer`.

Relational Algebra

You will use the Relax calculator and the schema associated with the text book for this question.

<https://dbis-uibk.github.io/relax/calc/gist/4f7866c17624ca9dfa85ed2482078be8/relax-silberschatz-english.txt/0>

Write a relational algebra expression that produces a relation of the form

(student_id, student_name, student_dept, advisor_id, advisor_name, advisor_dept)

All students must have a row in the result, event if the student does not have an advisor. All instructors must appear in the result even if the instructor does not advise an students.

Follow the format you used for the previous homework, i.e. paste the text of your expression in the markdown cell below and include the execution result for your expression. You only need to include the first page of results if there is more than one page of results.

Execute your query on the Relax calculator and show an image of the first page of your result below.

SQL

Use the Classic Models database for these questions.

Write a SQL statement that produces a table of the form

(country, productCode, productName, no_of_customers, number_of_orders)

Where

- `country` is the `country` from the `customers` table.
- `product_code` and `product_name` has the obvious meaning.
- `no_of_customers` is the distinct number of customers that ordered the product.
- `number_of_orders` is the number of orders that contained an `orderdetails` with the `product_code`.

The result should show 0 for `number_of_customers` and `number_of_orders` when there have been no orders for a product by a customer in the country.

In [23]:

%%sql use classicmodels;
SELECT
    c.country AS country,
    p.productCode AS productCode, p.productName AS productName,
    COUNT(DISTINCT o.customerNumber) AS no_of_customers,
    COUNT(DISTINCT od.orderNumber) AS number_of_orders FROM
    customers c CROSS JOIN products p

```
    orders o ON c.customerNumber = o.customerNumber LEFT JOIN
    orderdetails od ON o.orderNumber = od.orderNumber AND p.productCode = od GROUP BY
    c.country, p.productCode, p.productName ORDER BY
    c.country, p.productCode;
```

```
* mysql+pymysql://root:@localhost
0 rows affected.
3080 rows affected.
